

Adult Full-Time Certification Programs

HVAC/R TECHNICIAN

HVAC/R is a growing industry, and there will continue to be a demand for these types of services across the country and around the world. Businesses and residences need qualified technicians to handle their heating, ventilation, air conditioning and refrigeration needs. Our HVAC/R program is a comprehensive, technical and hands-on training program covering all critical aspects of the HVAC/R field. The HVAC/R program includes instruction and lab activities for residential and commercial heating, air conditioning and refrigeration systems. Learn and understand how to install, service and maintain these systems. Instruction begins with fundamentals based in common physics, and carries through controls, components and their applications, HVAC/R electrical systems and applications, and troubleshooting within each sector of the industry. Lab activities are centered on equipment that is installed in the lab for the purpose of instruction and learning. Each student also benefits from EPA certification, resume development, job shadows and four-week internship.
